MANY HEAR GOVERNOR SPEAK

Bridge Order at Garland City Is Quashed in Court

Injunction Preventing Work Interference Is Dissolved

CITY IS IN CONTROL

Work To Halt on Bridge Until Road Plans Are Given

The state highway department's injunction against interference with its bridge projects at Garland City by city officials was dissolved Tuesday by Chancellor C. E. Johnson, who dismissed the complaint for want of equity.

Judge Johnson held the testimony was uncontradicted that the action which was the basis of the injunction suit occurred in connection with the graveling of a Garland street which is not included in the state highway system and has never been condemned by the Miller county court for highway purposes.

The city authorities, he ruled, have absolute control of such a street and can prevent its improvement by the highway department.

Mayor Charles A. Beasley of Garland, against whom a temporary writ was directed, testified however that if the highway department would send representatives before the Garland City council, permission would be granted to gravel the street for use as a temporary detour from the bridge when it is completed. Despite repeated invitations to confer with the council, the highway department has ignored the town officials, he complained.

State Engineer C. S. Christensen said the department was seeking to gravel the street merely to be used as a detour to permit traffic to reach a temporary approach to the new bridge, which he said would be completed in a few days.

This street, he added—"McKee Street"—will have to be closed at a point within 200 feet of where it ends by a transverse earth fill which will constitute the permanent approach to the bridge. The highway department, he explained, plans to gravel a driveway beneath the concrete bridge approach to provide access to this dead end.

Judge Johnson also held that inasmuch as a suit has been instituted in Miller county circuit court for condemnation of property between the bridge and the highway on which the permanent approach will be built, his court has no jurisdiction over matters touching the property condemned, or the parties involved.

Mayor Speaks

Mayor Beasley said at Garland Tuesday night that until the highway department lays before the Garland City council a plan of what it intends to erect in the way of approaches and detours, no work will be permitted to proceed either on the temporary or permanent approach, regardless of whether they are carried across streets. The highway department is understood to own the strip of land on which it planned to build a temporary approach while land for the permanent approach is being condemned. The former, under original plans, was to be a steep embankment terminating at the edge of McKee street.

State Highway Engineer Christensen told him, the mayor said, that an underpass in the approach for street traffic was out of the question.

"Dead" Son Pays Visit To His Dad

Mississippi Mayor Greets Boy He Believed to Be Dead For Years

RULESVILLE, Miss., July 8.—(UP)—Joe Conger, 42, who has been "dead" for 20 years, came home recently to visit his father, Ed Conger, 67-year-old mayor of Valden, near here.

Mourning for dead after his teens, Conger was hardly recognized when he stepped on his father's porch here to announce that "I'm living and a husband and father." He had driven up to the old homestead with his wife and two children in a fashionable motor car from his home in Los Angeles, Calif.

Joe's return was the counterpart of the prodigal son, except that a mother, sister and brother, who died during his extended absence, were not there to greet him. Conger turned vengeful more than a quarter century ago, admittedly "to see the world at 17." He was reported to have wandered into Texas and died.

Brough Talks at Good Roads Meet

Urges Elimination of the Railroad Grade Crossings

OKLAHOMA CITY, July 9.—(AP)—Good highways are contributing more than any other factor in promoting friendship, consolidating schools, fortifying churches and stabilizing markets, Charles H. Brough, former governor of Arkansas, Tuesday told the annual convention of the United States Good Roads association. Brough urged the delegates to go on record as favoring an additional congressional appropriation of $25,000,000 for bridges and culverts on interstate highways and an additional $50,000,000 for aid to meet roads traversed daily by rural mail carriers.

"Let us also urge upon our representative general assemblies and our highway commissions the elimination as rapidly as possible for the 6,000 grade crossings on federal aid highways, alone and the placing on their highways of uniform markers for the information and convenience of our motorists," he suggested.

Mooney Pardon Is Denied By Governor

Young Upholds Decision of Pardon Board in Taking Stand

LOS ANGELES, July 9.—(AP)—Governor C. C. Young Tuesday declined to pardon Thomas J. Mooney, who is serving a life sentence for the 1916 San Francisco preparedness day bombing.

"Until some farther light is shed upon the case, which I do not possess," the governor said, "I must firmly must accept the conclusions of the supreme court and the advisory pardon board."

In a long statement the governor said he considered the Warren K. Billings and the Mooney cases parallel, and both men were innocent or both were guilty.

The supreme court last week declined to recommend a pardon for Billings, also serving a life sentence for the bombing which killed 10 persons and injured 40. The advisory pardon board decided late Monday Mooney was not entitled to a pardon.

Scott Countan in Ironing Contest

WALDRON, Ark., July 9.—Mrs. M. C. Satterfield will represent Scott County in the ironing contest to be held at the annual Farmers' Week to be held in Fayetteville by the University of Arkansas College of Agriculture August 5, 6, 7, 8. Mrs. Satterfield wins this privilege by having done more improvement work in her kitchen than any other woman in the county, according to records kept by Miss Mollie Lindsey, home demonstration agent.

Kitchen woodwork was painted, a new floor put in, a freeze proof fruit closet was built in one corner of the kitchen, a sink and pitcher pump installed, and a pressure cooker purchased, which is used not only in canning, but in the daily preparation of meals.

Cotton Acreage Shows Decline

Texas First and Arkansas Fourth in Acreage Figures Show

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—Cotton in cultivation in the United States on July 1 was announced Tuesday by the department of agriculture as aggregating 45,815,000 acres, compared with 47,067,000 acres, the revised area in cultivation a year ago, and 45,081,000 acres picked last year when a crop of 14,821,499 equivalent 500-pound bales of lint was gained.

The department issued no forecast of indicated production, as that is forbidden by law, and will not make any production forecast until their August 1 report which will be based on the acreage in cultivation July 1, less the 10-year average abandonment in each state after July 1. The 10-year average abandonment from 1920 to 1929 was 3.5 per cent.

The area in cultivation July 1 this year was:

Virginia 90,000 acres; North Carolina 1,724,000; South Carolina 2,205,000; Georgia 3,818,600; Florida 106,000; Missouri 383,000; Tennessee 1,227,000; Alabama 3,652,000; Mississippi 4,314,000; Louisiana 2,071,000; Texas 17,500,000; Oklahoma 4,076,000; Arkansas 4,012,000; New Mexico 133,000; Arizona 212,000; California 273,000; and all other states 19,000.

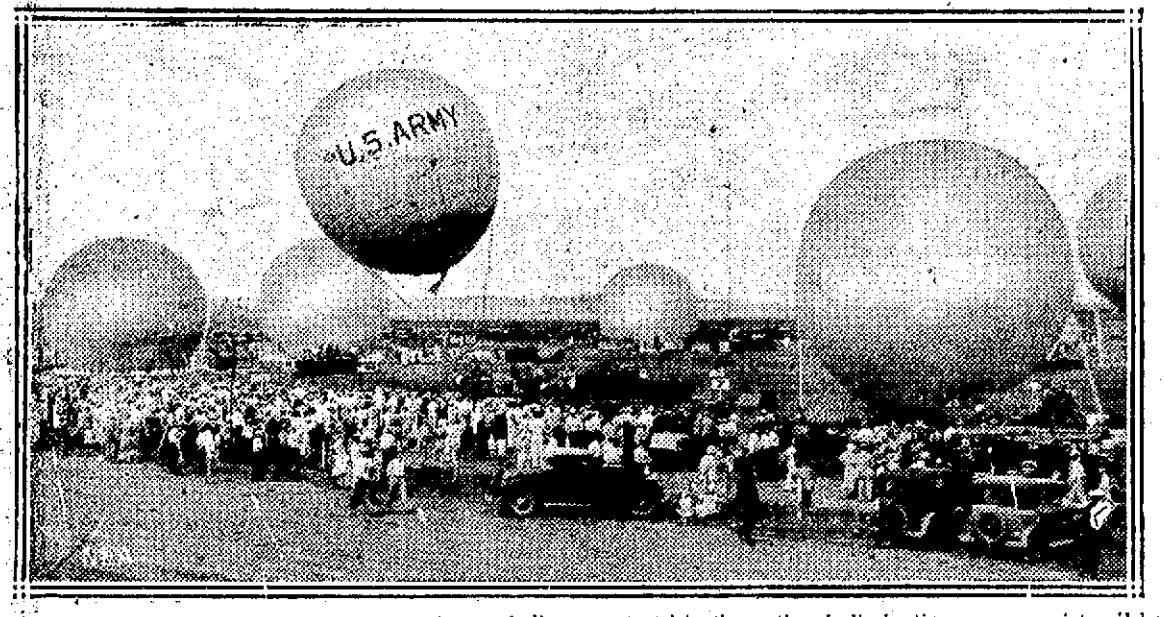

The acreage for Lower California, Old Mexico, is 101,000, which is not included in the California figures, nor in the United States total.

Several of the number landed within the bounds of the state. First and second plane winners will take part in the Gordon Bennett international races starting at Cleveland on Labor Day.

Kiwanis Club To Visit Piney Grove

John P. Cox and County Agent Lynn Smith To Talk

Residents of the Piney Grove neighborhood have been invited to attend a good will meeting and program arranged for them by the Hope Kiwanis club this Thursday night at 8 o'clock. The Washington quartet is to render music for the occasion. John P. Cox is to deliver the talk of the evening. Lynn Smith has also agreed to make a short talk.

This is one of a series of good will trips which has been made each week or so by this civic club, in the interests of a far more friendly feeling between the business institutions of Hope, and the trade territory served by them. About a dozen Kiwanians are to leave the Barlow Hotel Thursday evening at 7:30 in order to get to Piney Grove in good time. The program will be given in the school house in that community.

Missing Machine Agent Arrested

Magnolia Salesman To Be Charged With Embezzlement

Franklin, 35, Magnolia representative of the Singer Sewing Machine company of this city, who recently disappeared with $4,000 belonging to the company was arrested in Little Rock today and placed in the county jail here.

Two other first degree murder indictments were returned by the jury Tuesday. They were against Lawrence Owen and Buddy Giles, negroes, both accused of killing negroes.

Davis, an itinerant farmer, came with his wife to visit a sister near Foreman a few days preceding the tragedy. They had begun walking in to another community on the day the woman was killed, having stopped at a vacant house about five miles northeast of Foreman to eat mulberries for lunch.

W. J. Gilbert and his wife were picking blackberries in the vicinity coming upon the old house while Davis was carrying boards in the direction of the well, they told officers.

After talking to Davis for several minutes, Gilbert told that Davis informed him that he had had a "terrible accident" and needed help, declaring that his wife had fallen into the well.

Gilbert assisted Davis in rescuing the dying woman, and then fled to Foreman under the pretense of going for water at a nearby creek.

Officers were summoned to the scene by Gilbert when he reached a telephone.

Maintaining his innocence steadily since his arrest, Davis has contended that his wife fell into the well while drunk as he sought apples in the vicinity.

Officers declare that they found a board in a creek bearing a hair which conformed with that on the head of Mrs. Davis, and another board, which fit perfectly with the one found in the water, near the well.

A physician testified at Davis' preliminary hearing that death was caused by severe blows on the head with a blunt instrument bearing some projection such as a nail.

The body of Davis' bride was sent to a son in Tennessee shortly after the tragedy.

Davis told officers that he married the woman about six weeks before her death, and that she had remained with him in his wanderings from one community to another.

Still wearing the uniform of the American army, Davis declares that he is a Spanish-American war veteran, receiving a pension monthly.

He has employed three well known lawyers in Little Rock county.

"Janitor, you could cool our apartment nicely if you would run ice water through the radiators."

"Can't be done, ma'am."

"What did you have in them last winter?"

Largest Political Gathering in Hope Hear Gov. Parnell

Citizens From All Parts of the County Attend Speaking

DR. SMITH PRESIDES

Governor Reviews Promises Made to People Two Years Ago

One of the largest crowds ever to assemble at a political gathering in this city heard Governor Harvey Parnell last night at the Hope city hall. When the speaking began shortly after eight o'clock the auditorium was practically full and people continued to come in until the speaking was over.

The meeting was called to order by Dr. Don Smith, local physician, who presided throughout the evening. Three candidates, running for state office were announced, they were Roy V. Leonard, for state treasurer, Walter Brazier, also for state treasurer, the announcement of Mr. Brazier being made by his brother, Charles M. Spraggins, who is a candidate for the office of secretary of state.

Dr. Smith in introducing Governor Parnell, said "This is my first opportunity to meet the Governor, but from this meeting I am convinced that he is a regular fellow."

Governor Parnell at the beginning of his talk said, "Two years ago I made the people of Hope, Hempstead county and Arkansas some promises of what I intend to do if I were elected to the office of Governor. I want to brief tell you that these promises have been fulfilled, or are being fulfilled."

He briefly spoke on the construction of an annex to the state Tuberculosis Sanatorium and the preliminary plans for the new state hospital for nervous diseases as two of the outstanding accomplishments of his administration.

In reviewing his administration the Governor defended the income tax law, and declared that his opponent, Brooks Hays was making a campaign against the income tax law or any income tax and was backed by money interests who were opposed to an income tax law.

He also told of the progress made during his administration, in the continuance of the state highway program and said that he had fulfilled every campaign promise made two years ago along this line.

Some time was spent by the Governor, in telling of plans to build what he termed, "Farm to market" roads within the next administration.

The governor touched briefly on the rural school situation of the state, following are a few of the items mentioned:

"Throughout my entire public career I have been identified with the movement for raising our educational standards in Arkansas. The school people everywhere have worked with me, and will bear the best and most enthusiastic testimony to the genuineness of my position.

As a member of the Senate, I was author of the Parnell Cigarette Tax Law that puts every year a million dollars into the common school fund, that is so badly needed in the small rural school.

I have always felt that the rural schools was the special place where our efforts should be bent. We have been pretty generous with our institutions of higher learning. What we need to do is to give a better chance to the farmer's children in the poorer rural communities.

There are many other issues and interests that have been injected into this campaign. I have tried so far as possible to make myself clear on all of them which are legitimate and which have an actual bearing on the race. I have no desire to seem vague or evasive or mealy-mouthed about any of them.

But it has seemed to me that the major issues, the issues which come home to every man, woman and child in Arkansas, are those upon which I have just dealt at length. The continuation and completion of the present road program, as it is now going forward, the working out of a supplementary system of county roads that will tie the rural communities in fully with the main state highways and bring their benefits home to all, the relief of lands of the burden of state taxation, and the building up of the rural school.

These all affect the farm, which is nearest and dearest to my heart. Not that I would neglect the further development of our industrial system, and any reasonable program for bringing new payrolls to Arkansas. Those who know me know that I have been and shall always be, interested and active and helpful in such matters.

Governor Parnell closed his speech by telling the audience that he was born and reared in the state, in Cleveland and also reviewed his political career for the past several years.

Not Really Safe Yet

THE campaign for a safe and sane Fourth of July got under way a good many years ago. Apparently, however, it is still a long way from being an unqualified success; at any rate, 178 Americans lost their lives during the celebration of their country's independence.

In other words, we seem to be, if not back where we started, at least a lamentably long way from the goal. One hundred and seventy-eight lives make a high price for any holiday. Ordinary human carelessness is still playing a big part in our lives.

Nevertheless, an examination of the figures show that the nature of our fatalities is changing, at least. Thus fireworks, which used to number their victims by the scores, accounted for only 12 deaths. Automobiles, on the other hand, took 81 lives, and 57 more were lost by drowning.

All of this suggests that perhaps we have been putting our emphasis in the wrong place in campaigning for a safe Independence Day. The firecracker, the toy gun and the skyrocket have been the chief objects of attack; now, it seems they have become relatively harmless. The automobile and the bathing beach stand out now as the holiday's greatest dangers.

And this, in turn, shows that it is not primarily the enthusiastic young child who needs these warnings about safety. For many years the safe-and-sane campaign had the child as its object. It sought to impress on him the dangers that occur in fireworks, and sought to induce him either to leave them alone altogether or to use them with extreme caution.

But it is the adult that needs the warning. It was not children who piloted those automobiles into the smashups that took 81 lives. It was not exclusively children who made up the list of 57 drowned persons. The automobile accidents were all due to the negligence or incapacity of adults; and a big percentage of the drownings was due to the same thing.

Perhaps it is time we shifted the campaign to a new basis. The firecracker and the kid have been its objectives long enough.

A War That Didn't Pay

TWENTY-ONE years ago a young Englishman named Norman Angell wrote a book called "The Great Illusion." The book gave him a certain amount of fame; it also drew down on his head a good deal of very severe criticism.

Thesis of the book was that war does not pay. You will remember that 21 years ago modern Europe was moving rapidly toward war, and every student of international politics knew it. Germany and England were having a feverish naval race. France and Germany were having a similar race in land armaments. All over Europe people were getting ready to fight.

Angell, sized up the situation, declared bluntly that they were all wasting their efforts. Never again, he asserted, would it be possible for a victory in war to bring prosperity or security to the nation that won it.

This, then, was his "great illusion"—the theory that any nation stood to gain anything of lasting value by going to war.

Angell was bitterly criticized, branded an impractical pacifist and an idealist. A few years later the war that he foresaw came, and all the world took a hand.

The other day he celebrated the 21st anniversary of his book—and found high British government officials ready to congratulate him and tell him that he had been right all along. The country that had condemned him two decades ago was ready to admit that there might be something to his argument.

For the World War, after all, did teach us something. It compelled us to learn that modern war is a profitless business all around.

Germany, beaten in the war, has gone through an uncomfortable ten years. It has experienced nearly every form of hardship that can come to a nation. The war that was to win Germany a "place in the sun" was most assuredly a losing venture.

But the conquered always fare poorly. How about the victors?

There is England; England, which has had a colossal unemployment problem ever since the armistice, which has a tax rate so staggering as to be almost incomprehensible to Americans, which has seen her trade and financial supremacy more violently shaken since 1918 than ever before, which has had to grant another nation joint rulership of the seas, which skated closer to a revolution, in the 1926 general strike, than any Englishman likes to think, and which has a Socialist prime minister.

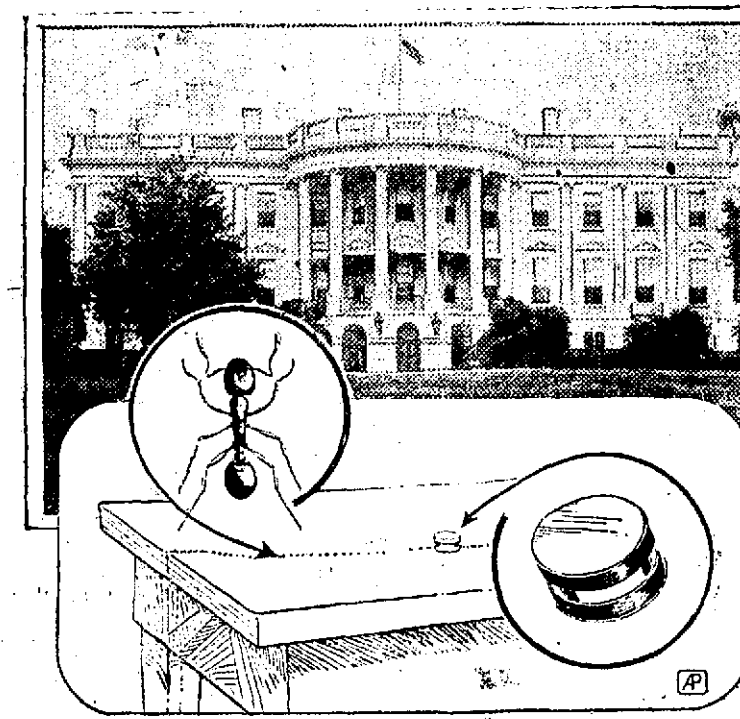

That is what England got out of the war.

You could go down the line with the contesting nations and get a similar result in nearly every case. Angell's thesis has come close to being proven. If the World War "paid" anything it is hard to figure out just how.—Jonesboro Tribune.

Pill Boxes Save White House From Raids By Pharaoh's Ants

Set athwart the line of travel, a pill box trap (right in sketch) exterminated little red ants (left in sketch) common to American pantries, when they attacked the White House.

ONCE UPON A TIME

George Grey Barnard, sculptor, lived for a year on $89 while studying in Chicago. His pockets were so full of holes when he sold his first statue he had to wrap the money in a handkerchief and carry it in his hat.

They took an ordinary round pill box, washed the interior with a solution of hot paraffin to make it water-tight, and removed four small sections from the inner collar over which the top fits. When in use the top is partially raised, exposing the openings through which the ants enter to obtain the poisoned syrup.

The contents of the box are protected by the cap from dust and excessive evaporation, and pet animals are unlikely to be attracted to such a closed container.

Being small, the containers are relatively inconspicuous and can be placed around wherever the ants are troublesome. They should be about two-thirds filled with small pieces of blotting paper to which is added a small quantity of poisoned syrup.

Cotton and Ellington used a poison consisting of 1 pint of water, 1 pound of sugar, 27 grains of thallium sulphate and 3 ounces of honey. The concoction was thoroughly stirred and brought almost to a boil.

Since thallium sulphate is a powerful and insidious poison, they warn that vapor given off by the syrup while it is being prepared should not be breathed.

Set athwart the ants' line of travel, the boxes will wipe out an infestation in a few days. Ants which do not die in the box move on among other ants, frequently carrying with them enough of the poison to kill 50 of their fellows.

LEWISVILLE

Beautiful in its simplicity was the wedding of Miss Mary Eleanor Casey of Lewisville and Louis Marshall Willis of Magnolia, which was solemnized at 8 o'clock Monday evening at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Caldwell Casey. The Rev. T. J. Watts, pastor of the First Baptist church performing the impressive ring ceremony in the presence of a large assemblage of relatives and friends.

The reception rooms were decorated beautifully with garlands of Southern smilax and summer flowers.

Preceding the service Miss Minnie Hawkins accompanied by Miss Maude Crumpler played as a violin solo, "Indian Love Call." Mrs. Wade Willis sang "Sweetest Story Ever Told," and "At Dawning."

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bride party entered and stood before an improvised altar, which was artistically decorated in green and white. The altar was banked with quantities of ferns and smilax, interspersed with tall floor baskets filled with gladioli. Dr. Roy Willis, brother of the bridegroom served as best man. Miss Martha Burton, bride's maid came first followed by Miss Mildred Casey, sister of the bride, who was maid of honor. They were gowned in similar models of green and orchid organdies, made with ruffled skirts. There flowers were arm bouquets of yellow and pink gladioli. The bride entered alone, she was beautiful in a model of flesh chiffon, with a picture hat of lace horse hair braid and shoes to match her dress. She carried a shower bouquet of Brides roses and valley lilies.

During the reading of the service MacDowell's "To a Wild Rose," was softly played with Miss Crumpler at the piano and Miss Hawkins on the violin.

Immediately after the ceremony the young couple left for Galveston and other Southern points. The bride traveled in a tan and brown ensemble with accessories to match. She is the oldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Casey. She graduated from the Lewisville high school and attended A. and M. College at Magnolia.

The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Willis of Magnolia, he graduated from Ouchit College and is now connected with the Columbia Cotton Oil company at Magnolia.

Out of town guests for the marriage were: Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. Wade Willis, Dr. R. M. Willis, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. GET THE PICTURES!

Perhaps the mightiest stride taken by newspapers in the last few years is the almost miraculous swiftness with which they are now able to produce pictures of important news events from remote distances.

Journalism underwent a great transformation when the carrier pigeon and other primitive devices for the conveying of news were supplemented by telegraph, telephone and wireless. It made another great step when science opened the door on the possibility of transporting pictures thousands of miles and printing them in newspapers within a few hours of the actual photography.

The Newspaper Enterprise Association, of which this paper is a client, pioneered in the field of fast picture gathering and distribution. It was the first organization to utilize the airplane as a practical carrier; likewise it was foremost in utilizing the telephone lines and radio for picture transmission. It is the largest newspaper and feature organization in the world.

Important newspaper pictures are speeded to this paper by NEA in the swiftest manner possible. By radiophoto and telephoto, by chartered plane, airmail and special train. These are the things which make it possible for this paper to print the pictures so closely on the heels of the news.

I'd like to leave but daffodils to mark my little way.
To leave but tulips red and white behind me as I stray;
I'd like to pass away from earth and feel I'd left behind.
But roses and forget-me-nots for all who came to find.
I'd like to sow the barren spots with all the flowers of earth.
To leave a path where those who came should find but gentle mirth;
And having lived and having toiled, I'd like the world to find
Some little touch of beauty that my soul had left behind. —E. A. G.

Bank Of Japan's Massive New Vault, Made For Quakes

Built to withstand earthquakes, the new vault of the Bank of Japan will be the world's largest and of the type and size shown at lower left. The door is 36 inches thick, compared with the 30-inch door (top) of the Chase National Bank in New York and the Federal Reserve Bank in Cleveland, now the world's largest.

NEW YORK — (AP) — Even earthquakes won't endanger wealth stored in the world's largest vault being built for the Bank of Japan.

The giant strong room will surpass in size and weight even the vault of the Federal Reserve bank of New York, at present the world's largest.

Three layers of heavy steel plates weighing 2,500 tons, each more than a half inch thick, with joints overlapping, will line the walls to resist the rending action of earth shocks. Walls are to be of reinforced concrete, four feet thick.

The vault will have two floors, each 190 by 200 feet, as large as the entire floor space of a small bank.

The six main doors, each 36 inches thick and weighing 70 tons, will contain drill-resisting chrome steel, a secret alloy to resist oxyacetylene torches, and chemicals which, when released by a torch or drill, will penetrate any gas mask.

Weight of the metal in the entire vault will total 3,500 tons, and 80 railroad cars will be needed to move it. The entire cost will be about $1,500,000.

The vault of the Federal Reserve Bank of New York, at present the world's largest, is three stories high. The world's largest bank vault door is that of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank. It weighs 195 tons and is 48 inches thick.

"The Big Party" On Screen at New Grand

The romance of a shop girl and her "boy friend," played against a variegated setting that ranges from a Third avenue tenement to an elaborate roof bungalow and a gorgeously modernistic modiste's establishment, and further adorned with plenty of delightful comedy and half a dozen of the season's catchiest songs—that, in a nutshell is "The Big Party," John Blystone's newest Fox Movietone production, opening today at the Grand theatre.

The picture opens at the music counter of a "five and dime" store where Kitty and Flo demonstrate the current melodies. Kitty is discharged for rudeness to a masher.

The boys across the court pay a visit that evening, bringing a third youth, Jack Hunter, who is a window trimmer in an exclusive modiste's establishment. Jack and Kitty promptly "fall" for one another, much to the amusement of the others, and the former secures Kitty a new job at the shop where he works.

Kitty is again fired for wearing a customer's dress, but Wetherby, the financial backer of the shop, intercedes and re-engages her to act as hostess to out of town buyers for the company. Jack suspects Wetherby's intentions, and has a bitter quarrel with Kitty when she is installed in an elaborate roof bungalow.

"The Big Party" from which the picture takes its name, is held in the bungalow in celebration of the event, and after a riotous evening, Wetherby remains after the others have left. Kitty flares up at the suggestion that he stay all night, and runs away into startling complications. Dixie Lee, the piquant little blonde who portrays the role of Kitty, is co-starred with Sue Carol and Walter Catlett. The supporting cast includes Frank Albertson, Richard Keene and "Whispering" Jack Smith, Charles Judels, Douglas Gilmore, Ika Chase, Elizabeth Patterson and Dorothy Brown.

The Babe Ruth of Redland
THE fans of Cincinnati pick up their newspapers these days only to read again that Dan Howley has taken another on the chin. But that isn't really the reason why Red fans read the sports pages—they really want to see how many Harry Hellmann is hitting and where he stands in his race for the batting honors of the National League.

But for two people these would be dismal and dreary days when the Reds play at home. The two people are Dan Howley and Harry Hellmann. For the Red fans have found a slugger and a pitcher who are both in all the glamour of Babe Ruth.

Dan Speaks Up
THE other day Brooklyn offered $20,000 and sundry ball players for Hellmann. Robbie well knows he could win the National League pennant with that much money of the ex-Detroiter. But Dan Howley would have no business of that sort.

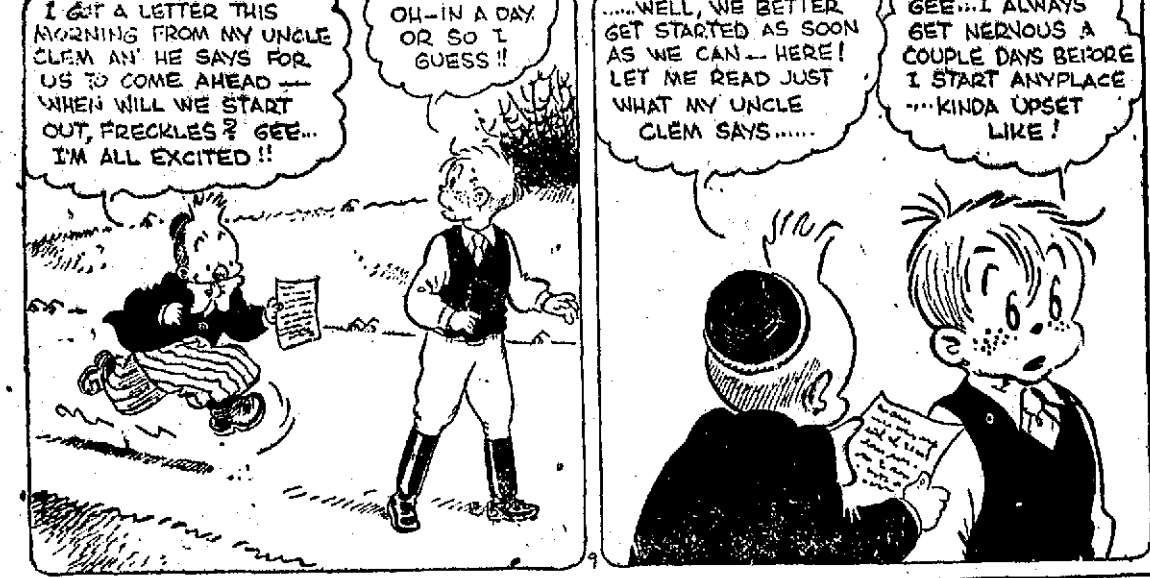

"If we peddled Hellmann," spoke Howley, in his inimitable slacker style, "this man's ball game might as well transfer its character to the Regina, Saskatchewan, Muny League. We haven't been drawing the fans by the millions as it is. If we didn't have Hellmann up there lacerating that old Percheron's skin, we couldn't keep the ground keeper in the joint to see the games."

In this connection I remember a prediction made by Steve O'Neill, the veteran Indians' catcher who is now managing the Toronto International League entry. It was shortly after Hellmann was waived out of the American League last winter.

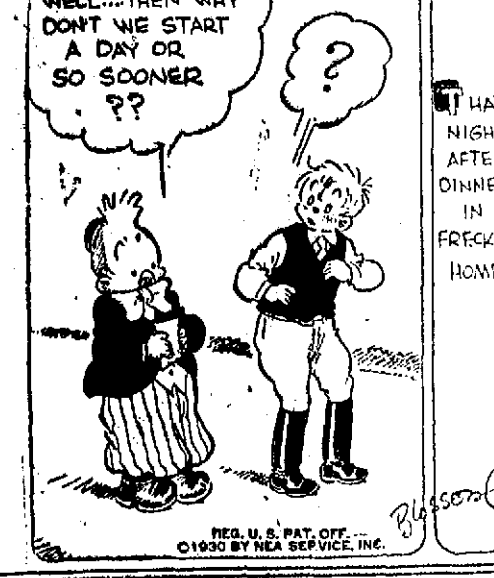

"Hell! Just that league," said Steve, "those National League pitchers will dish him up some curve balls and he will knock them down a lot of infielders' throats."

A Steady Barrage
HE has been doing just that. The other day he was batting .380. And .380 represents no sport at all for Hellmann. He'll be hitting .380 when the season

Freedom Now Looms for Mooney and Billings

Thomas J. Mooney, right, and Warren K. Billings, left, now serving life terms for San Francisco's Preparedness Day bomb explosion in 1916, face the possibility of early pardons by Governor C. C. Young (lower center). A commission of state supreme court justices is now considering a plea for a pardon for Billings and Governor Young has intimated that if this is recommended he will act similarly in Mooney's case. The picture in the upper center shows Mooney as he appeared when he entered prison more than a decade ago.

Find Plane of Lost Airmail Plot

Here's the only clue to the most baffling mystery the airmail service has ever known—a pilot who sailed away into the sky and was never heard from again. Los Angeles postoffice inspectors are shown above checking the mail taken from the wrecked plane of Matry Graham, Western Air Express pilot, who disappeared six months ago, and which has just been found in a remote mountain pass near Cedar City, Utah. Below is his wrecked plane. It is believed Graham wandered away in a blizzard and died.

All Parts of Old Cars Now Reclaimed

Antiquated machines from "graveyards" of cars (inset) now are dismantled of parts that may be reclaimed (below) before being flattened out by 22-ton press (above) for the furnace.

DETROIT (AP)—Virtually every part of an aged automobile is salvaged in one way or another by modern methods.

After five months of experimental work, the practicability of reclaiming materials from old cars has been determined by the Ford Motor company.

More than 18,000 antiquated cars of 60 different makes were purchased from dealers and put through the dismantling process before it was announced that the plan was successful.

A force of 120 men dismantles these discarded automobiles, salvaging many parts in their entirety, converting others into useful articles, and sending the remainder through the smelters to reclaim the steel and convert it again into an un-to-date motorcar.

"Derelict" autos are bought from dealers at a fixed price of $20 a car, regardless of make, age or condition. The cars are brought to the company plant on trailers, or are towed there by other cars whose capacity for locomotion has not yet been spent. Thus far salvaging has been confined to the Detroit area.

At present three conveyors are used in dismantling operations. One is used for Ford cars and one for those of other makes. The third carries scrap to open hearth furnaces, and salvaged material such as batteries, tires, and floor boards goes to waiting trucks.

Everything on the derelict car is salvaged and even grease is saved. Hubcaps are reclaimed for aluminum; ignition wire for copper; oil cups for brass; bushings for bronze and other bearings for babbitt.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

JUDITH GRANT, artist's model, loves ALAN STEVENS, young painter, who is also loved by STEVENS' roommate, CHUMMIE MOBILE. Chummy and loved Stevie years ago, and lost her memory when he went away. She thought Stevie loved Judith. Judith insists that it is his duty to marry Chummy, who does not know of their love. Judith is studying dancing, and ALAN STEVENS, painter, who is infatuated with her, offers to star her in a musical show. Stevie is distrustful of Chummy's intentions, but Judith will not be swayed. She dances for a group of friends at a studio party, and in a bit in the festive time finds herself standing beside Stevie at a window.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

"I COULDN'T bear to see you dance in front of a great vulgar crowd," Alan said beneath his breath.

"Hush!" Judy whispered, frightened at the passion of his voice. "I've got to dance—I simply must. You've no idea what it's like."

"It drives me mad!" he went on. "It will drive other men mad!"

His voice was reckless. Judy held her breath as Chummy and Hilton passed close to them.

"You mustn't talk like that," she said when they had gone by. "You must be crazy! Come and dance at once, and behave like other people!"

He obeyed her, but the hands that held her might have been made of wood. He dared not realize that she was close to him, keeping step with him, a light, gossamer thing of perfect skill and grace. He stumbled heavily in his anguish, and she released herself.

"Clummy!" she laughed. "I'm parched. For mercy's sake, get me something to drink!"

There was more dancing, and they ate the sandwiches and cakes, and drank lemonade, or vermouth, or cold broth.

Then Tony and Michael begged Judy to dance again.

"I'm dog tired," she said; "but I don't mind, if it pleases you children."

THE two artists were overcome with amazement, truth to tell. They could hardly believe that this was the Judy they had known for years. They had never appreciated her charm, although they had admired her steadfast care of poor Chummy; but this—this feather-light embodiment of sheer art, this fiery, seductive, languid, gay, irresistible creature—they felt that their eyes must be deceiving them. They were eager for her to dance again, so that they might make sure.

But just then the telephone bell rang out in the little lobby. Alan went out and came back quickly. "You've wanted, Miss Grant," he said. "Often in addressing her he used the formal name."

Judy was away a long time—or so it seemed. They all talked together, but at last there came a full, prolonged out of nervousness. In it there was no sound of Judy's voice outside.

They waited; it seemed an interminable time. Then Alan opened the door and went out. He found Judy standing beside the instrument. She had replaced the receiver. She looked at him as if she did not know him. Her arms hung stiffly by her side. She was like a statue.

"Judy, what's the matter?" he whispered, careless whether those inside heard him or not.

She did not answer, but walked like an automaton before him into the big room.

"Oh!" she said in a reedy voice. "A dreadful thing has happened! Old Guarvenus—dear old Guarvenus—has been run over in the street and killed. That was his housekeeper on the phone. He asked for me the last thing before he died in the hospital. She was there—they'd sent for her. She sent a messenger to the cafe, knowing I'm often there, and they told her where I was. Isn't it awful! He was such a dear old thing—like a father to me! And now he's dead!"

Chummy went to Judy, put her arms about her, and tried to comfort her; but she was not to be comforted. She burst into bitter sobs that racked her body with anguish.

They gave her the sympathy of silence. But in the midst of it Stevie's heart sent up a fiery burst of thankfulness, because, if her master were dead, Judy might never become a dancer, and might never be gazed upon by the eyes of the great, vulgar world!

"JUDY says she will never dance again,"

"Rubbish!"

"She says she was actually dancing when Mr. Guarvenus died."

"What's that got to do with it?" asked Dumont. "Wouldn't he have wanted her to be dancing?"

"He wanted to see her," said Chummy.

"I know but she couldn't help it that they didn't find her in time. I call it rather morbid."

"She says her career is over. I think it's a pity myself, but Alan thinks it's right."

"You saw her dance. What did you think of her, Chummy?"

"I think she was perfectly wonderful. And so were you, Bastien. The way you played! It was a dream."

"It was nothing. It was all Judy. She is a great dancer."

"Of course."

"I understand Stevie's point of view," Dumont went on. "It's a man's. I have it myself to a certain extent. No man wants to see a woman in whom he's interested, in the public eye."

"Oh, Bastien, that's old-fashioned! Men used to shut their women up in caves."

"I know. It's the old idea, and it's still there."

"But you, Bastien—you wouldn't want Judy not to become a dancer? And you're just as much interested in her as Alan is."

"Yes, just as much interested," he answered, with a sudden laugh;

"but I think perhaps I've got more of the cursed artistic temperament. I think it would be a crime if Judy's art were lost to the world. Still, I understand Stevie, all the same."

"I think you're ridiculous, both of you," said Chummy stoutly. "You might just as well say I shouldn't paint."

"Oh, no, that's different, Chummy."

"How different?"

"Well, the world sees your work—it doesn't see you."

"Oh! It's because the world has to see Judy herself. And you men don't like it—even though she's nothing to you. At least, she's nothing to Alan."

"I told you it was the man's point of view," Dumont said, swallowing something in his throat.

"It's jealousy—dog-in-the-manger jealousy, Bastien," said Chummy; "on Alan's part, at any rate. Of course, I can't help knowing that you care for Judy, but you say you don't mind her dancing."

"That's because I'm cursed with the artistic temperament, and it gets the better of the man in me."

"Bastien," said Chummy earnestly, "I'm sure you'll win Judy's love in time."

"Do you think so?"

"I'm sure of it. You're so faithful, and she is so fond of you."

"Have you noticed that?" he asked with sarcasm.

"Of course I have. And now you're getting on well and she's going to be famous. Some day you'll be a great pair!"

"And you, Chummy—when are you to be married?"

"Next month."

"Is the date fixed?"

"Not the actual day. I don't want to go away until something is settled about Judy. I couldn't leave her; and we were going abroad at once."

IT was just a week after the death of Guarvenus. Another grave for Judy to visit and tend! She had gone into deep mourning. She had canceled all her model work and spent her days in her own rooms.

Guarvenus, apparently, had no relatives but a young nephew—a youth whose remarkably good looks were marred by unmistakable signs of dissipation. He happened to be in New York at the time, having just come over from Paris, and now took charge of everything. In the absence of a will he was the sole heir. He shut up the dancing school and sold the lease of the house with all the furniture and fittings—lock, stock, and barrel.

He was not interested in dancing as a high art. He did all his dancing at the Moulin Rouge and the Bal Bullier. He did not trouble himself about his late uncle's pupils at all. He only very reluctantly allowed the great Marie Plomene to choose a personal souvenir from the master's private belongings, and he was rude to Judy at the funeral; but, as she spoke no

French, and he no English, it made no impression on her.

For more than 10 days Judy saw nobody but Chummy. Apt to exaggerate everything, she behaved as if she had been left an inconceivable widow. She would discuss no plans for her future. Only once did she talk about anything but Guarvenus and his goodness to her, and that was when she asked her friend when she was to be married.

"We have postponed it, Judy darling," Chummy said. "I couldn't go away and leave you like this without knowing what you are going to do."

Then Judy spoke very decisively. "That's all nonsense, Chummy! You know I shall be all right. I can go to work again as soon as I want to, and I shall when I've got over the shock. I could always get on the stage now. Anybody would give me a chance—I'm sure of that."

"But you said you were never going to dance again, Judy."

"I know I did; but that was after the first blow. I've been thinking since then. I feel sure that he would have wanted me to go on dancing. I think it was wrong to feel that everything was over. If I set on and do well, he would have been proud of me, Chummy."

IT sounded somewhat involved, but the sentiments were unimpeachable; only it was all so unlike Judy—this serious little person in black, with unpainted cheeks and eyes that appeared to be studying the problems of life.

"Of course, my career is done for," Judy went on. "I don't suppose I shall ever be a great dancer—not famous like Plomene. You want what dear M. Guarvenus described as the right atmosphere and surroundings. I shall never have a theater to myself, and a perfect orchestra, and all the advertising that he was going to give me. Of course, he could have managed all that, and I was going to pay him back afterward."

"He had practically taken a theater for October, hadn't he, Judy?"

"Yes—the Haystack, and he had engaged the orchestra—but of course all that will go by the board. I shall have to make my way, like any other beginner; but you're not to worry about me, Chummy. I shall be all right. I shan't want for anything. You go and get married, and go abroad and have a lovely time."

"I suppose, Judy," said Chummy, rather nervously, "you wouldn't come with us?"

"What an idea!" cried Judy, and laughed more like her old self.

"But afterward, Judy, when we come back—when we go to Maine—you'll come and stay with us, won't you?"

"Oh, Lord, yes, if you'll ask me! There's nothing I'd like better. Just promise me, Chummy, first, that you won't put it off on account of me."

OUT OUR WAY

A TWO-SIDED AFFAIR.

Chicago Paper Names
Arkansas Boy as Editor

ARKADELPHIA, July 8.—Otho Harrellson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. T. Harrellson of this city, who graduated from Ouachita college with the class of 1929, has been made assistant editor of the Illinois Farmer, a weekly paper published in Chicago, where Harrellson has been taking journalism in Northwestern University. Young Harrellson finished Ouachita with honors and was appointed scholarship in the McMillan school of journalism at Northwestern University. He has been working for a news gathering agency and doing other jobs to help pay his way through school. His father is business manager of Ouachita College. Harrellson is now engaged in writing his thesis for his master's degree and has chosen as his subject, newspapers in Arkansas.

Shiloh, in Howard Co.

An all-day singing will be held at Shiloh, Howard county, the third Sunday in July, July 20, it was announced here today by C. E. Nutt, well known Mineral Springs contractor.

Honore Kennedy, of Hope, will bring the special singers. Mr. Nutt said.

Shiloh is on the state highway two miles out of Mineral Springs, and the singing event is expected to draw a large crowd from Hempstead and Howard counties.

Promises To Introduce
Bill to Divide Taxes

LUBBOCK, Tex., July 7.—(AP)—G. E. Lockhart, Lubbock attorney and candidate for legislature from the 119th district, in a statement issued Saturday night declared he favored and would introduce in the next legislature a resolution proposing division of Texas into five states. He said he would propose Lubbock as one capital.

Negro Killed in Leap
From Officer's Car

TULSA, July 8.—(UP)—Aaron Olden, negro, chose to risk leaping from a police car rather than appearing in court on a charge of refusing to pay for gasoline at a filling station and lost.

He was killed when he leaped from a police car into the path of another car Monday.

Boys Break Many Lights In Cities

CHICAGO, July 8.—(UP)—Poor boys have greater respect for public property than have the sons of the rich, Michael J. Kennedy, city commissioner of gas and electricity, declared after he made a survey of damage to electric light globes by boys with air rifles and sling shots.

"Our annual June problem," said the commissioner, "is the small boy with stones or air rifle. During the summer months these boys break a thousand or two electric light globes, which the city must replace at a cost of $3.60 each."

The damage is almost entirely confined to the better class wards. The children in the poorer quarters and the children of our foreign population seem to have more respect for public property.

Quoting an alderman who said that "100 lights equal one policeman," Kennedy added that his department was doing its bit to reduce crime.

"Street lighting is back to normal," he added. "In this city only 1,500 of the 86,000 lamps are unlighted. This represents only 2 per cent of the total lights of Chicago."

The Oklahoma state court of reviews saved taxpayers more than $2,780,000 in the last fiscal year.

Iron ore deposits of high value have been found in Peru on a plateau bordering the Pacific.

Four Generations Serve Railroad

Father Retires and Son Take Up His Duties

PHILADELPHIA, July 8.—(UP)—Railroad tracks, just ribbons of steel to the unimaginative, spell glamor and romance to the Thomas family of this city. Conover A. Thomas, 70, recently turning up a century of loyalty by his family to the flashing rails, retiring from duty only when his son had reached an age when he could step into his father's shoes and carry on. Stepping from the engine of train No. 124, crack Washington to New York, Pennsylvania Railroad express on the day of his retirement, the veteran engineer brought to a close three successive generations of railroad work in the Thomas family.

In the pioneer days of railroading, when the "Boomer" was an illustrious and important personage, Conover's grandfather, Asa Thomas, began work for the old Camden and Amboy railroad, now a part of the Pennsylvania system. In 1930, when most of the early railroads were still under construction, he spent more than 20 years in his service.

His son, Charles P. Thomas, Conover's father, followed in his father's footsteps, working for more than 55 years in a clerical capacity on the Trenton division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

Conover himself has made railroading his life work, having spent the last 42 years at the throttle of a locomotive. He reached the age of 70, when retirement is compulsory under the Pennsylvania's pension regulations, on June 15 last.

His retirement, an even century after his forefather entered the railroad industry then in its infancy, comes at the close of the first 100 years of railroad growth and development in this country.

Earl H. Thomas, Conover's son, is carrying on the traditions of his forebears. He has served the Pennsy for 20 years, during 15 of which he has been in passenger train work. He served as conductor on his father's last train.

For four successive generations, the Thomas family has followed the path of the iron rail and these four generations have given the Pennsylvania System, or companies now forming part of its system, a total of 147 years of consecutive service.

Veteran of Confederacy Killed By Automobile

FORT WORTH, Texas, July 9.—(UP)—His uniform in which he fought under the banner of Jeff Davis during the Civil war bedecked J. M. Steward, 84, when he met violent death here Monday. The veteran stepped from the curb in the path of an automobile, and was so badly injured that he died shortly thereafter in a hospital.

Auto Pound Does Job In New York

Errant Cars Taxed $5.00 For Parking Law Violations

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 8.—(UP)—The family automobile parked too close to a fire plug now receives much the same treatment here as the family dog at large without a license tag.

An automobile pound has been established across from downtown police headquarters where errant cars may be stored pending deposit of $5 by their owners. Cars are impounded only for flagrant parking violations.

"The pound is serving its purpose well," Captain George L. Rickard, head of the traffic squad, said. "Flagrant violations of parking ordinances have decreased materially."

During its first month of operation, the pound received an average of three automobiles a day. Only one owner refused to pay the $5 penalty. He took his case to court and won.

Rocky Mountains Haven For Caribou

The Best Snow Walker of the Deer Family It Is Said

GLACIER PARK, Mont., July 9.—G. C. Ruhle, Glacier National Park Naturalist predicts that this region of the Rocky Mountains, with its stretches of permanent wilderness, ultimately will become a haven for Caribou. One of these animals recently was seen in the Park by Ranger Nelson.

With the sole exception of the musk ox, the caribou ranges farther north than any other New World ungulate. Ruhle reports, "It not only roams the forests of the Canadian Zone that stretches across the Dominion, but is also found on Arctic wastes bordering polar seas, on the bleak northern and western coasts of Greenland. The strong, thick legs, the long, cow-like head held low and thrust straight forward, the expanded, flattened hoofs give the caribou an odd appearance, but Nature has well fitted it to withstand hibernal terrors of an Arctic home. The spreading foot-pads permit it to walk over snowfields and muskegs where even the moose would sink and be forced to plow through. It is the best snow-walker of the whole deer family. Moreover, the strong legs, swinging gait and long stride permit it to wander on long seasonal migrations for climatic and feeding purposes. Only the nineteenth century bison of our larger animals performed longer, more amazing travel exploits. It does on moss and lichens."

"Caribou are found in the Bridge and Frazier River country of British Columbia, near Based on the Canadian Pacific Railroad and in the Kootenai River country west of the Park. The Supervisor of the Canadian Forests of British Columbia has said that they are sometimes found just north of the Park boundary. Thus it is highly probable that with the encroachment of native fauna to regions of safety and preservation, this most interesting member of the deer family some day will become a permanent resident of Glacier National Park."

Hines Named Head Veterans Affairs

All Agencies Are Brought Under Control of the Bureau Chief

WASHINGTON, July 9.—(AP)—All veterans agencies of the government Tuesday were brought under single control by President Hoover with Brigadier General Frank T. Hines, for several years head of the veterans bureau, as administrator.

Hoover, in announcing he had prepared the executive order to carry into effect provisions of the bill passed by congress at his request, said the new establishment "becomes one of the most important functions in the government" and represents the most significant reorganization of the governmental machinery during the present administration.

The act, which became effective with the issuance of the president's order, brings the veterans bureau, an independent establishment, the pensions bureau from the department of the interior and the soldiers' home from the war department all under the veterans administration.

The consolidated budgets of these three services for the present fiscal year amount to approximately $800,000,000. The president expects, however, important economies to be effected through the consolidation and co-ordination. These are to be brought about, he said, through administration of hospitalization and domiciliary activities and in the better handling of fiscal relations with veterans throughout the entire organization.

Certain functions are to be transferred from one division to the other but the president said these changes would come gradually and without disturbance to their administration.

General Hines, whom the president said was remaining with the new establishment to give the chief executive the advantage of his wide experience during the reorganization has been offered and attractive commercial position and the president indicated his tenure would be temporary.

General George H. Wood is to be continued as head of the soldiers' home with the board of managers probably constituted into an advisory board.

The pensions bureau will be administered by an acting commissioner of pensions for the present and the veterans' bureau by an acting director.

Begin Second Week Of Revival Here

The second week of the meeting of the Church of Christ, being conducted by Evangelist H. Paul Lewis of Nashville, Tenn., will have afternoon and evening services.

Gripping Jungle Drama In Color and Sound

"Mamba," the Tiffany all-talking, all-Technicolor production current at the Saenger theatre, is a gripping, virile story of the African jungles with all the action and atmosphere that go to make up a thoroughly entertaining picture.

It features such highlights as British and German troops in action the burning of a native village, the savage and picturesque ceremonial dances of the tribesmen and countless animals on what is so authentic a representation of their native heath that they felt thoroughly at home.

Jean Hersholt, always an excellent artist, shows new power in this interpretation of a bad man—and a thoroughly mean customer he is. He gives the picture its name, for he is as greatly to be feared as the mamba, the poisonous snake of the jungle. Eleanor Boardman is exquisite and Ralph Forbes at his heroic best. "Mamba" should not be missed. It remains until Friday at the Saenger theatre.

Old Sol Does Hatching Job in Colorado

GREELEY, Colo., July 9.—(UP)—Tuesday's heat story from the Rocky Mountain region comes from the farm of Fred Steele, east of Greeley.

A mother duck left its nest with but one lone duckling hatched from the setting of eggs over which she had been hovering.

Farmer Steele put the mother bird and her lone duckling in a pen away from the nest.

After two days of 100 degree weather, seven more ducklings emerged from the eggs, left by the mother duck, the sun, unaided, having completed the job of hatching.

a 1930 OIL FOR 1930 MOTORS

Higher speeds require higher-test motor oil

BETTER STICK TO "STANDARD"

These days, every car manufacturer is stressing how fast his particular car will go. That means more motor revolutions per minute, greater piston speed, and higher compression—therefore, more frictional heat.

Only a specially designed, high-quality motor oil can stand up and lubricate effectively under these conditions. Don't take any chances. Stick to "Standard" Motor Oil.

Before "Standard" Motor Oil comes to you it is carefully tested and re-tested for freedom from wax (any good motor oil made from paraffin-base crudes should be free from wax); freedom from excess carbon; freedom from acids; ability to flow freely at low temperatures; ability to maintain its body and an effective lubricating film, and hold compression under high temperatures; resistance to emulsifying and crank-case dilution; and resistance to being consumed under the highest motor-operating temperature likely to be encountered.

The "Standard" Technical Staff is always alert to the new developments in motor designs, and a grade of "Standard" Motor Oil is provided to meet every new lubrication need. The latest recommendations are embodied in the new "Standard" Chart of Recommendations which is now on display by all "Standard" Dealers and agencies. It is your safe guide to efficient, economical motor lubrication.
